

PRESS RELEASE

Enhancements on FlyGreen.ca website More travel options and continues to be climate friendly

Vancouver, B.C., 21 October 2008

Finding the lowest airfare has become time consuming and a real challenge for thousands of Canadians. Many will spend hours researching numerous websites before they find that ideal situation.

Then they must resort to booking on the airline's own website to avoid paying extra fees and these sites don't always have the lowest fares – even on their own airplanes.

After all that, those same websites ask travellers to pay toward purchasing carbon offsets to help defray environmental damage caused by airplane travel.

"Enough, we say! www.FlyGreen.ca is a travel website that addresses all these dilemmas on one site" – commented Nicole Murcutt, Manager of the program.. "We started with only Westjet and Air Canada webfares on our site and now virtually all airlines flying within Canada or internationally are bookable on our site – with NO BOOKING FEES, and we offer free partial carbon offsets for the trip too," she continued.

"We know that at least 95% of Canadians are concerned about the environment, but dislike being asked to pay extra", Nicole said. Until the airlines and other travel suppliers completely offset their own travel, www.FlyGreen.ca will provide at least a partial offset for every trip booked on the site – at no extra cost to our clients.

www.FlyGreen.ca offers flights, hotels, tours and cruises – all at the lowest possible fares, with no extra fees of any kind and still pays to partially offset the carbon produced as well. "It's a no brainer" Nicole emphasized. "Our site allows our clients to see all options with just one search – with no extra fees and free offsets. Brilliant!"
